PAVARINI was founded in 1956 as a manufacturer of components and agricultural machinery.

During the early eighties the management decided to leave manufacturing of agricultural machinery parts and focuses exclusively on components and rod ends for hydraulic cylinders for the industrial field.

More and more special items according to customer requirements complete the present delivery program.

The technical support of Pavarini is starting in the early stage of development up to the final production. Storage of the goods and just in time delivery is a matter of course.

Starting from November 2016 Pavarini Components S.r.l. belongs to WSW

WÄLZLAGER in Germany. Through this connection we could complete our delivery program again. The new WSW Group, with WSW and Pavarini together, is now the biggest marketer of spherical plain bearings, rod ends, bushings and brackets for hydraulic and pneumatic cylinders in Europe with international production sites as well as own production facilities in Germany and Italy. We are able to follow all customer requests with the necessary support.
